

Subject: TESTIMONIAL for my reading provided in Oct 2008

By Ketty Cascione, Sydney.

Where do I begin? I was referred to Jacqui by another psychic who did a reading for me almost 4 years ago. The timing of the events that occurred were strange enough, the referral came from a psychic whom I had not spoken to in 4 years and was not even in the country until 2 weeks prior to me calling her. She said she was not available but knew of another fantastic psychic I could see. I was hesitant seeing someone who I had not met before, but my trepidation slipped away quite quickly as it came as I walked into Jacqui's home. As I noticed all the books and her past and current memorabilia I was comforted by the notion that I was doing the right thing. Jacqui knew nothing about me at all so I waited with baited breath as she finished doing some work chores before providing me a reading. As I walked in I remained straight faced, not giving out any emotions as I tried to not give away any of my reasons for my very much needed reading. I don't think it worked; she had picked my character before we had even begun. A healer she called me, and since I the age of 5 that is exactly how I have felt. Imagine my surprise as Jacqui had me shuffle the cards and cut them as I just sat there having my current situation unraveled before me. I was not skeptic of her ability, more so what was going to be told. I was very interested to see exactly what was in store for me. I was in dire need of answers and guidance. And to my astonishment everything that had been occurring the past year she unfolded like an old book. Jacqui's reading was so spot on with facts that only very close friends of mine were privy too. She even voiced so many things that I had no courage to even discuss. I had goose bumps from the very first words that Jacqui mouthed. I was very comforted by her words, at no point fearing any detail or doubting anything she was saying. Even though the reading was based around me, more came up about my partner, but in essence that is what I was there for. "What is he thinking?", she kept repeating as I quietly smiled inside knowing exactly what she was trying to say. I needed some guidance with my relationship situation. And guidance I received. The first words, "you need to make a choice, to stay or to go". This was the cherry, from which all else flowed, which has been my drive to rectify my life and govern the courage to do what is right for me. To regain my strength and spirituality was my aim. The reading went on for so long that I was grateful, to have had it recorded. There was so much information given to me, that I was dazzled by the sheer accuracy of Jacqui's reading. At no point did I not believe or have faith in what was being said. Too many details were just too accurate, to be coincidence. There is no way one person could arrive to conclusions, especially when you don't reveal any information yourself. Even when questions were asked of me, I did not provide much information. I let her feel what was required and from that the story unfolded. To which there was no disappointment, only sheer delight as I regained a part of my being that I thought I had lost. The detail that came out of my reading gave me the courage to make my demands, which I feel has righted my relationship woes. At the least I am now stepping in the right direction and have Jacqui to thank for that. Even through your own intuition, you might know the answers to what one should do, but when you meet someone as talented as Jacqui her ability gives you much hindsight to be able to give you that extra push you might have needed. I do believe I was in desperate need to be healed and I will also be going back to attend some of Jacqui's healing classes on the weekend. As well as attending to many more readings in future. For the gift of knowledge I was granted by Jacqui I will remain forever grateful.

With many thanks and deepest regards,

Ketty.
